The Death Penalty—
2000 Years Later, the State Still Kills

REPORT TO THE LISTENER

Valerie van Isler, General Manager

"THOSE WHO PROFESS TO FAVOR FREEDOM, AND YET DEPRECATE AGITATION, THESE ARE PEOPLE WHO WANT CROPS WITHOUT PLOWING UP THE GROUND." Frederick Douglass, 1857

In any other year, entering the spring is a herald of transformation and new life energies. But this year, it has become a season of discontent by the malcontents in Congress pushing through their contract with/on America.The battleground is now very clear after the first 100 days of this Newt*onian* era. They have attacked everything including declaring war on poor people, opened the battle lines against women's rights, immigrants, affirmative action, civil rights and public broadcasting. With people like Pat Buchanan calling for "a war to take back our culture and take back our country" in his bid for the Republican Presidential nomination, while still others call for reclaiming America as a "Christian" nation, this last part of the twentieth century is becoming more and more of an Orwellian nightmare. This new congress really seems to hate the public—they want to end everything from public arts, to public libraries to public broadcasting. As ever, eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. Now more than ever, at Pacifica we will continue to plow up the ground.

As part of WBAI's proud tradition of thirty five years of extraordinary community broadcasting, we have continued to produce programs on these provocative issues such as the specials on the import and the impact of the cuts on the Corporation for Public Broadcasting budget and the National Endowments for the Arts and Humanities on the very soul and spirit of our society and this democracy. Despite these pressures and problems, we have done our work and continued to win awards for our broadcasts again this year. A Golden Reel, the highest honor in community radio, went to Mario Murillo this spring for his production One Flag, One Territory on Panamanian sovereignty. He also received a New York State Council on the Arts grant for a special report on the indigenous people of Columbia. Allen Nairn, who has been a guest on our airwaves many times, won the prestigious George R. Polk Award for his breaking story on the U.S. Plan for the Haiti invasion and occupation weeks before it took place. Congratulations to them all as this acknowledgement of excellence is fitting during our 35th anniversary celebration. On May 8, we begin our Spring Membership drive which will feature specials on the State of the Nation [Post the first "100 Days"], The Assassination of New York City and State, Women's Rights and Women's Health in the 1990's, The School of the Americas and the CIA, The State Still Kills—Capital Punishment Revisited, specials on science and technology with Dr. Michio Kaku, The Personal Computer Show staff and much more. We have a real challenge before us because we have to meet a May goal of over $600,000. We know our growing audience will respond to the extraordinary demands of these difficult times. Your very generous help during this campaign will strengthen us for the battles ahead and prepare us to bring you even greater service and more award-winning programs in the coming months, So please tune in for the Spring Membership drive from May 8 - May 25, 1995. And call to volunteer if you can at 212-279-0707.

Finally, very special thanks to all our members and friends who contacted their congressional representatives and expressed their views about the impending CPB budget cuts. That battle is still going on and has now reached the senate. If you haven't done so yet, we urge you to make your voice heard by writing your senator today.The future of community radio is in your hands.....

2000 Years Later The State Still Kills

Mumia Abu-Jamal

Is Pataki the new Pontius Pilate? As New York State restores the death penalty, and both New Jersey and Connecticut move closer to actual executions, WBAI will focus on the return of this state crime. On the air, on May 18, Wake Up Call in the morning and special programming in the evening will both focus on the death penalty. One of the most prominent political prisoners facing execution, Mumia Abu-Jamal, contributes regular commentary to WBAI's Where We Live. (This commentary was originally scheduled by National Public Radio, but never carried there, after protests by police groups, according to the New York Times 2/15/95.) WBAI is very proud to co-sponsor an extraordinary public reading of Mumia's new book, Live from Death Row, May 21 in the Great Hall of Cooper Union. (Turn the page for details)

In the morning, we'll be taking a close-up look at the issue of capital punishment, recently re-introduced in New York State. Among the guests will be journalist David von Drehle, author of the book Among the Lowest of the Dead: The Culture of Death Row, and we'll be playing excerpts from African-American journalist and former Black Panther Party member Mumia Abu-Jamal, currently sitting on death row in Pennsylvania

In the evening, from 7:00 p.m. to midnight, the show will be The State Still Kills: An Examination of the Death Penalty. Tune in to this four hour special report on the political, social and psychological aspects of the death penalty. We'll have an historical review of the uses of capital punishment (both in the United States and in other parts of the world), and bring it up-to-date, asking why it's still in use. With politicians from City Hall to Albany to Capitol Hill and the White House promoting the use of capital punishment as a necessary and useful deterrent to crime, we'll explore the accuracy of this assessment and try to explain the psychological reasoning that a person has to make in order to accept these conclusions. Finally, we'll go inside death row with an interview with Mumia Abu-Jamal. Produced by Where We Live and the WBAI Public Affairs department.

Program highlights

May 4 7-11:00 p.m. Karl Marx's Birthday Celebration

May 11 7:30-midnight The Assassination of New York as the government cutbacks leave more bodies dying in the streets, we'll look at how this happened and how to resist the move to the right

May 12 7:30-midnight Political Comedy, Part 2. From John Kennedy (The First Family) to Ollie North, Pat Robertson, and Jesse Helms (Randy Credico's 60 Minutes). Join us and laugh. Produced by Fred Herschkowitz

May 15 7:30-11:00pm The School of the Assassins The SOA has an infamous list of graduates who have been behind some of the most profound human rights violations against their own populations, leading many people to dub it "the School of the Assassins."

May 19 & 20 Malcolm X Why Was He Killed? Who Benefited Most From His Death? 30 hours of extraordinary radio, including a performance of the radio drama brotherminister by the Creative Unity Collective, updated to included the COIN-TELPRO like persecution of Qubilah Shabazz

May 21 6:00 p.m.-1:00 a.m. Health Alert A critical examination—with proposals for solving—the ongoing crises in health and nutrition confronting "inner city" communities. With Gary Null, John Harris, and many others

And in June

Weekends of June 18th & 25th, Gay Pride march and rally and look for additional lesbian and gay programming throughout the month of June.

Changing Course:
A Survival Toolkit for the 21st Century

A 13 Part Series produced by Evelyn Tully Costa and the Four Corners Radio Team

Have you ever wanted to grow your own food or know exactly who did and where it comes from? Should your friends and family like to buy inexpensive, fresh organic vegetables, meat, and dairy products from a co-op you set up and run? How about starting a group home or co-housing project with shared childcare, laundry, eating, and gardens? Would you like to work fewer hours and spend more time with your family and friends, while helping save the planet? How about fighting the recent cuts to social services by pulling some power and resources away from those who have too much (the wealthy, corporations, and government) and giving it back to yourself and your community?

Changing Course: A Survival Toolkit for the 21st Century is a primer for economic, spiritual, cultural, and political survival for a thriving next century. We will explore what individuals, families, block associations, and communities (urban, rural, and suburban) are doing to bring stability and control back into their lives. Distant politicians and activists thrive on issue-oriented political campaigns which leave many people out in the cold, numb and cynical about making change. The good news is that small scale efforts to rebuild local economies, food sources, housing, and political power are proving successful across the country and the world. How we approach problems makes the difference in seeing projects through.

New Programs

The sense of hopelessness and anger that many of us may feel can be directed into positive action that feeds the soul, our sense of worth, and the greater political struggles around us. Survival Toolkit for the Millennium will examine practical ways to apply the rhetorical ideas in our everyday lives. Making meaningful connections and arming people with resources is the goal of this series on survival and well being. Each show will include news from Peacenet. All programs will stress community and family empowerment, and suggest practical ways to benefit from our guests' knowledge. We'll report on local groups, farmers' markets, botanical gardens, community gardens, museums, food co-ops—anyone who is pulling back power from larger corporate or governmental entities will get priority. Each show will have a food and organic gardening section which stresses local, seasonal ways for people to get together around healthy food they can grow. We'll discuss how to take back control of your diet and a bit of living destiny. At the end of the summer, we'll produce a resource list for listeners who want to arm themselves with a toolkit for survival. To get on our mailing list, call the Four Corners Radio office at 718-789-1847.

Tune in Tuesdays starting June 6 from 2-3:00 p.m.

Beyond the Pale:
The Progressive Jewish Radio Hour

One of the newest additions to WBAI is Beyond the Pale: The Progressive Jewish Radio Hour on Wednesdays from 2-3:00 p.m.. The Pale was the only area in the Czarist Empire where Jews were allowed to live. "Beyond the Pale" thus came to signify transgression, danger, and unconventional behavior. The program explores, in unconventional ways, the experience, identity, culture, and politics of contemporary Jews.

The show, produced by Jews for Racial and Economic Justice (JFREJ), took over the reins from the Jewish Currents show, American Jews: Heritage and Responsibility on March 1. JFREJ is a young and vibrant activist organization committed to strengthening a progressive Jewish voice in New York City. JFREJ brings together rabbis, educators, writers, activists, social workers—the entire range of the Jewish community, young and old, queers and straights, students and workers. We work to make the Jewish struggles against anti-Semitism and for pluralism an integral part of the larger social justice struggle. JFREJ seeks to revitalize the Jewish community, and through anti bias education work and coalitions with communities of color, reaffirm the Jewish community as a key part of the struggle for justice in New York.

Upcoming shows will offer a progressive and transgressive Jewish spin on such topics as: Jews and the Radical Right, the affirmative action debate, lesbian/gay liberation, bi-culturalism, social Darwinism and genetic theory. We'll feature Jewish culture, from traditional Sephardic and Klezmer music to performance art and experimental jazz. The show is hosted by Esther Kaplan and Marilyn Neimark, with associate producer, Russ Burd, every Wednesday from two to three in the afternoon.
(Preempted May 10th & May 17th)

Vriesland, a radio drama by Katherine Ashe, illuminates one of the darker chapters in American history, the massacre of the Lenape Indians at Hoboken in 1644. The Nanuet band of the Lenape, under attack by Mohawks, had sought refuge with the Dutch. Instead, Kieft, the Dutch governor, seized the chance to settle old scores and ordered his troops to slaughter the Lenape. About 100 men, women, and children were slain as they slept in a makeshift camp on the bank of the Hudson River, opposite Manhattan.

Vriesland, based on the memoir of Dutch seacaptain and patroon David de Vries, explores the circumstances surrounding the massacre. Much of the action is set on or near De Vries's estate in what is now northeastern New Jersey, Vriesland.

The Creative Unity Collective Show

As part of WBAI's celebration of the 70th anniversary of the birth of El-Hajj Malik El-Shabazz and our annual spring fund-raising drive, the Creative Unity Collective presents a special new production of it's award-winning original radio play, "brotherminister." The spirit of the late minister, completely unaware of all that has transpired in his absence, visits the living Louis FarrakKan in these troubled present times. A cast of very special guests will be participating in this production and the script will be updated to include the events swirling around COINTELPRO's attempts to bring down Qubilah Shabazz. No Secrets

A monologue by Peggy Dominique, performed by Annabelle Leland
Performed in the Arts Magazine Thursday May 4 at 3:10 p.m. and in Wake Up Call 6-7:00 a.m. June 5

In October of 1994, my sister-in-law gave birth to a baby boy. He was the first boy born in our family. On the second day of my nephew's life, we went to get mom and dad and the new baby from the hospital. When we got there, we discovered my nephew had just been circumcised. I was truly shocked. I didn't know little boys where still getting circumcised. My nephew was in extreme pain; he was weeping and he had knotted up his little hand in a ball and stuck that in his mouth. I knew that, on only the second day of his life, his organism was not equipped to deal with such extreme pain. As my heart began to break, I could only remember the words of Alice Miller, "We live in a culture that encourages us not to take our suffering seriously, but rather to make light of it, particularly the suffering and fate of a child." Out of the pain of that child (my nephew) and my own, part of this monologue was born. As Annabelle Leland says to her boss, "somethin' died in that baby on Sunday, Mr Arthur, I know, 'cause somethin' died in me" No Secrets is a glimpse into the life of Annabelle Leland and her enlightened witnessing of a child's reaction to circumcision. No judgments, just facts. And just heartbreak for those that witnessed his tears. Peggy Dominique

A Volunteer's Tale

Janice K. Bryant

Is it true that any work worth doing is worth being paid for? Debbie Dawson doesn't think it's true. Brother Shine, Vincent, Arnold, Gwen, Louis, Cerene, and Holly... and about 100 other WBAI listeners don't think so either. If they did, they wouldn't have been at the station 24 hours a day for 17 days in a row, answering a million phone calls during the record-breaking 35th-year membership drive.

Some folks say you should never volunteer. If the WBAI 100 had believed that, they never would have had the chance to see, or hear, as the case may be.

- Michael G. perform a miracle: feeding 25 people with one orange, one apple, a small brick of cheese, and a pack of crackers
- Joel spend two consecutive Saturday nights retelling the entire Wagnerian Ring trilogy, scene-by-scene
- One volunteer giving 10-minute Swedish massages
- Some perfectly delicious, but sometimes strange-looking, dishes conjured up by Erroll Maitland
- Maurice expounding on UFOs, all through the night—breaking only to read his poetry to the Tally Room
- Beth's singing, which is a dead ringer for early Minnie Ripperton — Beth can blow
- Simon Loekle doing everything but imploding for five hours one Saturday morning
- Dr. Clarke putting us all in our rightful, humble places when he talked about Black Studies: "You all discussed your favorite books, and not one African-American writer was mentioned?"
- Several frustrated volunteers, because we could hear only brief parts of the great speeches and singing on Peter Bochan's King Day tape—the phones did jump that day
- The droll sight of Samori Marksman giving Michio Kaku 2¢ to make up for Kaku's having volunteered his services for so many years
- A few angry listeners calling the Tally Room to complain about the nerve of WBAI doing a show on gasp! Cuba; the high price of premiums; the station being too far to the left; the station not being far enough to the left; the station not providing DISCOUNTS to those who made more than one pledge; the station not giving away stuff to folk who "just don't have the money but want a premium anyway"
- Amy winding up and going zoom, over and over again, bringing in mucho dinero
- Fred Herschkowitz winding up and going zoom over Frank Zappa and willing listeners to pledge
- ever-so-cool Bob Fass calmly exceeding his goal
- Jim Dingeman's prophetic, and surprisingly dire, producer's room musings about the future of the country, now that the right rules (he seems so conservative—could there be a liberal heart beating in that broad chest?)
- Bernard White sneaking in his background bass vocals on gospel tunes during Dred-Scott Keyes' Sam Cooke Story special

Certain persons of a right-leaning persuasion say that the country no longer wants or needs public radio or public television. If anybody believed that one, we volunteers wouldn't have made scores of very good new friends, Sharann and Alan wouldn't have experienced the sheer ecstasy of keying a mountain of pledge cards into the computer and the station wouldn't have taken in that $814,000 in pledges.

The station helps us connect. It provides a forum to discuss and to think about our neighbors, our city, our world. Nobody is going to agree with everything they hear on WBAI. But they for damned sure will have some kind of reaction. They'll form an opinion, make a judgment. And if they listen to the station more than two or three times, they'll be hooked. That connection will be made, and as hokey as it sounds, they'll be a part of the 'BAI family.

Just like your own family, these folks are just folks. Welcome to the fold. JKB

Janice Bryant (right) came to WBAI as a volunteer in January to answer telephones. Deciding she liked radio, she joined our training classes, volunteered with several producers, and, as you can see in the programming grid in the center of Folio, is now part of the morning show.

From the Listener Surveys

Thank all of you very much for the over 300 questionnaires returned from the last Folio. The kind words were heartening, the criticisms taken to heart. Many of us have spent hours reading them, and we're working on a more systematic analysis. If you didn't participate last month, please take a few minutes and send one in.

Some kind words

I learn more from WBAI than I learned in all my years in school. Thank you. (West Caldwell)

I'm a longtime supporter of WBAI, both financially and otherwise. It's probably the most important radio station in the United States and must stay strong! My deepest thanks for all you've done to enrich my life. WBAI is vital in the struggle for social progress—keep up the great work. (West Orange)

WBAI plays an enormously important role in my life. It is both spiritually and intellectually a treat for the mind, but even more, it affirms that people all over are engaged in struggle to change and improve the human condition. (Long Island)

I was one who found you during the Gulf War. You were the only source I could trust.(Manhattan)

You guys are doing a wonderful job. Please feel free to call me if you need a volunteer worker. (New York)

WBAI I love you because you make me connected to my community. You are like a neighborhood, both local and global. Sometime I need to find the time to stop by the station and see, not just hear, WBAI. (Manhattan)

Please join us. See Janice Bryant's article in this Folio about volunteering during marathon, or just call (212)279-0707 and ask for the volunteer coordinator. We welcome your help, both in Marathon and throughout the year. (Dave Burstein, Editor)

Some suggestions

Create some type of reference library for your listeners. (Mt. Vernon)

The Pacifica Program Archives—see their ad below—carries many of our finest tapes, along with thousands of other great radio shows. A catalog is free—call them at 800-735-0230

Tell us what our financial efforts have brought. Any new equipment? (NYC)

Absolutely—a whole new master control room, with a new console, better phone hookups, DAT recorders, over $100,000 in new equipment—is being installed starting in June. I and every other WBAI producer thank you and other contributors enormously. We still have to raise more money for our equipment fund—all contributions earmarked for this will be greatly appreciated. (Dave Burstein, Editor)

I love WBAI, but please, more women's programming. (Sunnyside)

We at WBAI, including Station Manager Valerie van Isler, seek a greater presence of women at WBAI. See elsewhere in this issue a discussion by Abby Smith and a request for involvement by Valerie van Isler

[I'd like to hear more about] ecological matters (Bloomfield)

Doing FM Radio in West Africa

by Annette Walker

Give Arts Director Anthony Sloan a few days anywhere in the world and he's likely to end up doing what he loves best—live radio drama or just plain live radio. One of WBAI's best remembered radio plays was Tutuola's The Palm Wine Drinkard, a Nigerian work, adapted for the radio and directed by Anthony Sloan.

So far this year he has made two brief trips to West Africa, visiting Senegal and Gambia. The first trip was to attend the conference of the World Association of Community Radio Broadcasters (AMARC) in Dakar, Senegal. AMARC is an international organization serving the popular radio movement. Anthony has attended previous conferences in Mexico City and Havana. (Shelton Walden and Patricka Dallas also attended this year's conference.)

While at the conference, Anthony produced a live radio drama, The Coming Plague, which deals with health issues in African societies.

"It was collectively written by some Senegalese women and children from the Ecole St. Marie, an international school," said Sloan, who also directed the performance. Some faculty members from the school were impressed with the effort and invited him back. He returned in late March, but due to a conflict with school exams, the live radio drama did not materialize. Instead, he travelled around Senegal and moved on to Gambia. In most instances, he interviewed people about life in Africa today.

Five days in Gambia was plenty of time to guest-host a live call-in radio show on 102.1 FM Stereo, a privately owned radio station. (English is widely spoken in Gambia.) A promo announcement was even on the air three days before the program, so the audience was ready, and Sloan found the audience very responsive.

"We talked about contemporary African society—its strengths, problems, and their solutions," he commented. Some of the material he gathered will probably be used for WBAI's African Liberation special in late May.

Producers' Corner

Jazz and Common Roots, Too!

by Annette Walker

Mahmoud Ibrahim and Kim Santos present the finest in contemporary jazz on Sundays at 11:00 p.m.. Since they are alternating hosts, they don't see much of each other and lack the opportunity to rap or schmooze. Perhaps that is why only recently they discovered they had more in common than their love of jazz. They found out they were both descendants of a relatively invisible immigrant group that is just starting to receive attention from social scientists, journalists, and cultural institutions.

On the maternal side, their families are African-American. In fact, one of Mahmoud's first cousins, Carlota Walls, has a permanent place in American history. She was one of "The Little Rock Nine," those brave teenagers who in 1957 became the first African-Americans to integrate Central High School in Arkansas. That, of course, was no easy task. They had to face a defiant Governor Orval Faubus who stood in the doorway to block their entrance. Furthermore, President Eisenhower had to send ten thousand paratroopers to protect them against the menacing mobs of white segregationists.

On the paternal side, however, Mahmoud and Kim are grandchildren of immigrants from Cape Verde, a group of islands about five hundred miles off the west coast of Africa, near Senegal. The people of the Cape Verde Islands constitute the first group of Africans to enter the United States as immigrants rather than slaves. Throughout the nineteenth century and early in the twentieth century, many Cape Verdeans traveled the world working on whaling ships, and some, including Mahmoud's grandfather, left the ships and settled in the Northeast. For decades, whaling port New Bedford, Massachusetts has had the largest population of Cape Verdean-Americans and, therefore, has functioned as the center of activity. There are also significant populations in Southern New England towns and smaller groups in lower Westchester County, New York, and California. Presently, there are 350,000 Cape Verdeans in the United States, which matches the population in the Cape Verde Islands themselves.

"My grandparents settled in Woonsocket, Rhode Island in 1917," said Mahmoud. "My grandfather had worked on a whaler, and 'jumped ship' in New England. He stayed a while, then returned to Cape Verde, married and returned with my grandmother," he continued. His family became part of a New England community that still retains enough of an identity to publish several newspapers and broadcasts about a dozen radio and cable TV programs. Mahmoud still has relatives who have immigrated from the Cape Verde Islands and speak the creole spoken there.

Kim's grandfather also worked on a whaler and settled in Yonkers around 1917. However, none of his family followed him to the United States and there has been little communication with family members in Cape Verde. Nevertheless, Kim plans not only to research her roots in Cape Verde, but to make a trip there in the future. Furthermore, equipped with her grandfather's birth certificate and passport, she is participating in the genealogy workshops at the Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture.

As part of it's annual festival of American Folklife, the Smithsonian Museum in Washington, D.C. will sponsor the first public event about the culture and history of the Cape Verde Islands and the Cape Verdean-American community. This will take place in late June/early July. Mahmoud Ibrahim and Kim Santos plan to be there, and like good radio producers in the midst of an historic event, they will probably have their tape recorders with them and we'll hear all about it on WBAI.

The Stock Market
Theory & Empirical Evidence
Anwar Shaikh
Fri, May 5, 7pm $6
What drives the stock market? In the short run the psychology of the market plays a crucial role. But the longer the time horizon, the more connected the state of the stock market seems to be to the underlying health of the economy as a whole. Anwar Shaikh, who teaches at the Graduate Faculty of the New School for Social Research, is currently completing his forthcoming book The Welfare State and the Social Wage: An International Study.

Can Progressives Use Capital Markets for Social Change?
Peter Camejo
Wed, May 10, 8pm $6
Peter Camejo, Chairperson of Progressive Assets Management Inc. and Earth Trade Inc., will discuss the issue of using capital markets for social and environmental change. Come and hear a provocative exposition on the role of markets in the class struggle and building alternative independent social and political movements.

Windows on the Workplace
Technology, Jobs & Work Organization
Joan Greenbaum
Tues, May 16, 7:30pm $6
In the 1990s, jobs are becoming more and more temporary in nature and the traditional bonds between employer and employee are being cut, turning increasing numbers of workers into freelancers and homeworkers. Joan Greenbaum, author of Windows on the Workplace: Computers, Jobs and the Organization of Officework in the Late Twentieth Century

Legislative Acts: Mother Courage Goes to Rio
Augusto Boal
Wed, May 24, 7:30pm $10
Augusto Boal, founder of the Theater of the Oppressed and a major inovator in post-Brechtian theater, was elected to the City Council of Rio de Janeiro in 1992. Once installed in office, he adapted his theater techniques for use in city politics—with some hilarious, and sometimes rancorous, results.

Grassrooting:
Multicultural/Anti-Racist Education
Sam Anderson & DARE Youth Representative
Thurs, May 25, 7:30pm $6
Speakers will talk about how one community is struggling to develop a progressive student-centered multi-cultural/anti-racist curriculum. They will explore how a course of study can organically grow out of the various racial and national backgrounds of the youth involved in creating a new high school curriculum. Sam Anderson is a math professor at CCNY Center for Worker Education and author of The Black Holocaust for Beginners.

Ecology & Capital Accumulation
Joel Kovel
LECTURE: Fri, June 9, 7pm $6
SEMINAR: Sat, June 10, 1-4pm Includes Lecture 45
Marxism should play a leading role in ecological politics, inasmuch as the principle cause of the environmental crisis lies in the system of capital accumulation. At the same time, Marxism stands to be greatly enriched by ecological awareness. This lecture/seminar will attempt to reformulate the question of the dialectic within Marxism in order to bring about a synthesis of the various strands of red/green politics.

Dr. Joel Kovel is a psychoanalyst and Alger Hiss Professor of Social Studies at Bard College

An Appeal to Women of Inner Substance and Drive

Hi! I am a singer/songwriter/radio producer who has been affiliated with WBAI since 1986 (not to mention a dedicated listener since 1968). I have produced both public affairs as well as arts programming. I love this station — with all its beauty as well as its warts. I am a firm believer that with consistent, quality energy and effort, WBAI programming can always improve and continue aiming higher and higher — in both form as well as content. As in my music career, I am particularly interested in melding the worlds of art and politics in radio programming. My additional area of concern and focus is women. I agree with the vast number of listeners who called in during this year's March 8th, 24-hour, International Women's Day programming, that Women and all the various issues that effect us have not been sufficiently represented on these air waves of late (I am talking about the last number of years). In addition, there have been complaints that there are not enough women's voice on these airwaves. I am interested in being a part of the solution to this problem.

It had been over five years since I had produced any radio show when I undertook interviewing Grace Paley for an hour-long show that aired March 28, 1995. Since the old adage: if you don't use it, you lose it, was partly in effect, I had to relearn a lot of the skills I had picked up in the mid-80's at WBAI. This last project was an incredible learning opportunity for me — one which I would like to share with any women out there who would be interested in learning about what goes into producing radio programs. By no means do I claim to be an expert — there are many other people here at the station with skills exceeding mine — but what I DO possess is great enthusiasm, love of people (if they are respectful and kind) and a great desire to help create more programming that speaks to women, using women's voices, women's technical abilities, etc. Why primarily women? Do I hate men? No way! Many men are my brothers, and not ALL women are my sisters. It's like this: From a technical perspective, men are socialized in this society to be very comfortable with technology, gadgetry and have little fear and apprehension in sallying forth. Women often tend to be more intimidated at first. This can be de-mystified and overcome. Content-wise, capable women who are bright and talented may, at times, be shy and reticent about putting themselves OUT THERE. This too can be overcome. Often, when women and men are learning something new in the same environment, there is a natural tendency for men to dominate the discussion, focus, attention and for women to recede into the background and defer. That is why this special appeal to any women listeners/potential producers is being made.

MAY DAY FIGHTBACK

Picture by George Cohen for DC 37

On this year's anniversary of Haymarket and the struggle for the eight hour day, we will focus on the renaissance of protest activity in the United States and the prospects for an effective fightback against the continued employer attacks on the labor front. We'll look at the threat to the social wage and the basic social safety net, and the difficulty finding a job, especially in New York City.

Monday, May 1, from 10:00 a.m.- noon and 1-6:00 p.m.

Labor is starting to respond. From challenges to Lane Kirkland to open talk of a Labor party, from new alliances with the community to U.A.W. strikes against overtime, the movement is awakening. To further fan these sparks of discontent, May Day 1995 will focus on the conditions of work and workers in the United States and the strategy for fighting back. We'll feature grass roots organizers in New York, trends on the national front, and special recordings from the Labor Notes 1995 convention. Coordinated by Ken Nash and Mimi Rosenberg.

Monday, May 1, from 7-11:00 p.m.

On this May Day, we will look at the state of the labor movement in the era of Neo-liberalism (i.e., "Capitalismo Salvage"). How have trade agreements like NAFTA impacted on organized workers in Mexico, and how has it contributed to the crisis they're facing today? What kind of direct and indirect repression exists against workers in countries that are promoting liberal democratic principles? We'll have a number of guests joining us to discuss these and many other issues, with reports from various countries. Produced by Mario A. Murillo and Annette Walker

The Nanuet band of the Lenape, under attack by Mohawks, had sought refuge with the Dutch. Instead, Kieft, the Dutch governor, seized the chance to settle old scores and ordered his troops to slaughter the Lenape. About 100 men, women, and children were slain as they slept in a makeshift camp on the bank of the Hudson River, opposite Manhattan.

Vriesland, based on the memoir of Dutch seacaptain and patroon David de Vries, explores the circumstances surrounding the massacre. Much of the action is set on or near De Vries's estate in what is now northeastern New Jersey, Vriesland. Part 1 today, continuing on Shelf Life Wednesday and Thursday

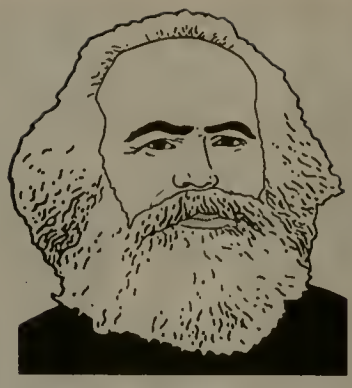
Karl Marx's Birthday Celebration



If the question "...Are you better off today than you were 4 years ago?" were posed today to the broad masses of people in the former Soviet Union and the "socialist world"—from Chechnya to "Czechoslovakia", or Bosnia to Georgia—the answer would undoubtedly be a resounding "No!" But in spite of material wretchedness and the tattered state of their societies, are the people of these same countries now clamoring for post-Lenin, Soviet style socialism? Can they "go home again?" Is Francis Fukiyama's "End of History" thesis now a fait accompli? Whither the left in the face of the most draconian anti-worker, anti-people social and economic policies since the 1920's?

These are but some of the questions to be examined and debated on the 112th anniversary of Karl Marx's birth with hosts Doug Henwood, Bob Fitch, Elombe Brath, Mimi Rosenberg, Ken Nash, and Samori Marksman, who'll be talking with one another, as well as with an array of Marxist and non-Marxist political economists and activists. Mexico! Mexico! Mexico! Cinco de Mayo 1995 Special

The year 1994 was perhaps the most tumultuous year in Mexico's history since 1910. It began with an armed Indian/peasant uprising in the southern state of Chiapas which had been brewing for over a decade, and ended with the greatest economic free-fall Latin America has seen since the catastrophic debt crisis of 1982. In between there were two high-profile political assassinations which exposed the corruption and infighting within the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI), the abduction of a number of prominent Mexican businessmen tied to the PRI, and national elections which put a rubber stamp on yet another six years of the PRI's party-of-state domination of Mexican affairs. The tragicomedy of Mexico's recent history is unfolding on a global stage that the country mounted with the rapid ratification of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) in 1993. The contradictory cosmetics of open markets and democratic pluralism - necessary in order for Mexico to enter the exclusive company of the so-called "First World" - quickly flaked under the bright lights of internal upheaval and international scrutiny, exposing a society of profound social and economic divisions governed by a totalitarian state apparatus. And while the Mexican elite were hoping that the new year would turn the tide of their misfortune, 1995 has thus far proven to be worse.

Within this context, WBAI will be presenting its annual Cinco de Mayo special this afternoon, with an extended edition of Alternativa Latina. Mixing music, literature and political analysis, we will spend the afternoon south of the border.

We'll start off with background on the significance of Cinco de Mayo, and play some of the latest Mexican music to set the tone. We'll also feature some contemporary Mexican writers sharing their work with you. Then at 2:00PM we'll get into our roundtable on current Mexican politics, with a focus on the Zapatista uprising and the economic crisis. Guests will be in the studio and on the phone from Mexico. Later, on Talkback with Santiago Nieves, we'll discuss the impact the Mexican economic crisis is having on immigration to the United States, and examine how the current political climate is impacting Mexicans living in the U.S. We'll of course end with your on-air phone calls. Produced by Mario A. Murillo and Gonzalo Aburto.

Midnight Labbrish On Trombone, Mr. Don Drummond, a tribute to one of Jamaica's greatest musical talents. He was enigmatic, he had style, and he was extremely talented. He was a star of Jamaican music when the term had true meaning. As a trombonist, he was as articulate as they come or continue to come. Although he was a magnificent composer and artist, no Don Drummond recordings exist in the true sense. Drummond recorded many of his compositions, but never under his own banner. His works are found as part of the catalogue of Skatalites recordings. In this sense he is like the great and revolutionary guitarist Charlie Christian, who was recorded but produced no records. Though Don D., as he was familiarly known, made no records, his talent and voice burst through all barriers.

Drummond, sadly, suffered with mental illness and in one of these bouts murdered his wife, Margarita, a talent and pioneer in her own right. For this, he was incarcerated in the Bellevue Mental Asylum until his death.

The National Lesbian and Gay Radio Town Meeting on the Radical Right

After two decades of progress, the gay civil right movement now faces a Republican majority in Washington that's indebted to a radically anti-gay constituency of religious fundamentalists. House Speaker Newt Gingrich has pledged to hold Congressional hearings on "the homosexual influence in education," while initiatives throughout the country threaten to take away previous gains and ban any future gay civil rights protections.
This live national broadcast will analyze who is leading the anti-gay charge, what are their goals and tactics, and how successful they've been. We'll look at possible responses, both at the national and grassroots levels. Guests will include Peter LaBarbera, editor of the Lambda Report on Homosexudlity, Mandy Carter of the National Black Gay and Lesbian Leadership, and Rich Tafel of the Log Cabin Republicans, a gay group.
Produced and directed by Bert Wylen, and co-hosted by Pacifica's Julie Drizen.

6:00 The WBAI Evening News

7:30 Behind the News/Building Bridges Special: The Assassination of New York City and New York State Hammered by cuts from Newt's "contract" and the Albany budget, reeling from years of shrinking government, New York City stands poised to confront another budget crisis with health, education, and welfare at risk. With our economy in shambles, Giuliani is promising painless surgery as he sacrifices government services and jobs. The social wage and the safety net are being destroyed on the altar of private prosperity to come. We'll have pie in the sky as we die—it's a lie.

So we'll talk with Bob Fitch and others about how the economy of this city was wrecked by subsidizing FIRE (Finance, Insurance, and Real Estate) and running down manufacturing and the port. We'll look for a new spark of fightback from the new community and labor coalitions strengthened by the State Budget battle and having Gingrich in our face. We'll talk solutions, including ending corporate welfare in New York City, bringing back the stock transfer tax, establishing a rail link to the mainland, and ending the mob tax. So join as Behind the News and Building Bridges combine for a special evening. Produced by Ken Nash, Mimi Rosenberg, Doug Henwood, & Bob Fitch

3:00 Healthstyles: Special Women's Health Edition Endometriosis is a gynecological disease. Its presence is characterized by endometrial tissue in parts of the body other than the uterus. The public, as well as many health care professionals, are unaware that endometriosis can affect any organ in a woman's body—such as bowel, bladder, lungs, or appendix. Women are being misdiagnosed and mistreated because their physicians do not recognize endometriosis. Over half a million women in the Greater New York area are affected, and as many as ten million nationally. This special three hour edition of Healthstyles is dedicated to the topic of endometriosis—time we all know would not be dedicated by any other radio station. Endometriosis is a complex disease, without a cure. Medical, pharmacological, surgical, and lifestyle factors need to be fully

The School of the Assassins

Monday May 15 7:30-11:00 p.m. Behind the News/Our Americas Special.

In recent months, the national corporate media have begun reporting on the movement calling for the closing of the United States Army School of the Americas based in Fort Benning, Georgia. The SOA has been the U.S. training ground for elite military officers from throughout Latin America for several decades. The Pentagon says its purpose is to "professionalize" regional militaries and foster an organic link between the command structure of the U.S. Armed Forces and their counterparts in Latin America.

The SOA has an infamous list of graduates who have been behind some of the most profound human rights violations against their own populations, leading many people to dub it "The School of the Assassins." From El Salvador's Death Squad leader Roberto D'Aubuisson to the Argentine Generals involved in the dirty war of the 1970s and 1980s, from Colombian special forces units involved in massive rights abuses to former Panamanian leader General Manuel Antonio Noriega, from Guatemala to Honduras, the SOA has "professionalized" a who's-who in international lawbreakers.

Despite calls for its closing by human rights groups in Latin America and the United States, the SOA has basically been able to avoid public scrutiny. But with recent revelations about CIA connections with the Guatemalan military and an Academy Award nomination for a documentary about the school, the New York Times and other major media outlets have been forced to take note. WBAI Pacifica Radio has been exposing the school for years. On tonight's edition of BTN/OUR AMERICAS, we'll update this work with an in-depth examination of the SOA and how it fits in with current U.S. policy in the region. The question is, while we're forced to swallow cuts in our children's education, why must we pay for this school of assassins?

Produced by Samori Marksman, Mario Murillo and the Public Affairs Department.

6:00 The WBAI Evening News

7:30 Political Comedy, Part 2. Featuring political satire and stand-up comedy spanning thirty-five years—from John Kennedy (The First Family) to Ollie North, Pat Robertson, and Jesse Helms (Randy Credico's 60 Minutes)

While every President has been sharply attacked, Richard Nixon was the most frequent target. There are great routines on Watergate and trickle-down and hysterical LPs in which the Mafia runs the White House and Hollywood stars are the cabinet and President. Other LPs feature an interviewer asking a "real" question to a politician—Nelson Rockefeller, Barry Goldwater, others—but the actual voice of that politician is edited to make him stupid. David Frye and Rich Little have recorded tons of quality skits with keen and critical ears. Political attacks have been done outstandingly by Lenny Bruce, Richard Pryor, Mort Saul, Paul Rodriguez, Father Guido Sarducci, and Fannie Flagg. Join us and laugh. Produced by Fred Herschkowitz

12:00 Everything Old Is New Again Join host David Kenney's six hour tribute to Bobby Darin. Also in the studio with David will be Bobby's former manager/press agent (and current historian) Harriet Wasser. The broadcast will also include interviews with record executives, biographers, and family members. And, of course, some of his rarest performances, as well as better known recordings

Monday May 15

6:00 Wake Up Call On this morning's program, Bernard and Amy take a look at United States involvement in Latin America and the Caribbean, with a review of the CIA's connections with various military thugs throughout the region. Featuring a recap of Senate hearings on U.S. CIA involvement with the Guatemalan military, they'll take it several steps further, putting North American militarism into a regional and indeed global context. Guests will include former CIA operative Philip Agee, Father Ray Bourgeois, who has been actively campaigning to close the School of the Americas down, Noam Chomsky and many others

Malcolm X Why Was He Killed? Who Benefitted Most From His Death?

30 hours of extraordinary radio Friday May 19 & Saturday May 20

Malcolm–Malcolm X–El Hajj Malik Sabaaz–Omowale. Although known to most simply as Malcolm X, to those who have followed the life and times of Malcolm—particularly through his years in the Nation of Islam and his subsequent work and travels, and on behalf of, the peoples of Africa, Asia, and elsewhere—he was no ordinary man. His work, and the wrath and enmity it attracted, were equally extraordinary. Malcolm was the target of several assassination attempts, including the bombing of his home while he, his wife, and his children lay asleep. His food was poisoned on a trip to Egypt. There were countless death threats directed to him and his family. In this extraordinary radio project, WBAI will thoroughly examine the reasons for Malcolm's assassination, and provide evidence and investigative reports identifying those behind Malcolm X's murder and their motives. The program will also locate the events before and after Malcolm's death in the context of the larger struggle of African-Americans (and other oppressed peoples) for fundamental human rights.

Among the guests will be Dr. Betty Shabazz and Attila Shabazz, the wife and eldest daughter of Malcolm X; historians Dr. John Hendrick Clark and Jan Carew; Iman W.D. Muhammad, eldest son and official successor of the late controversial leader of the Nation of Islam, Elijah Muhammad; Minister Conrad, regional representative of Minister Louis Farakhan; Professors Bill Sales and Zak Kondo, authors of two investigative books on the life, death, and ideas of Malcolm X; and activists and filmmakers Kwame Ture (formerly Stokely Carmichael) and Spike Lee. The program will also feature major segments on the larger COINTELPRO activities of the F.B.I., which were directed at Malcolm X, the Nation of Islam, and many other organizations and individuals. We'll air several recordings of Malcolm—including several talks and interviews only recently discovered and never played on the radio.

Produced for WBAI by Bernard White, Amy Goodman, Mario Murillo, Dred-Scott Keyes, Terry Wilson, the Creative Unity Collective, Utrice Leid, Mimi Rosenberg, and Samori Marksman

Highlights of June Programming

Friday June 2

Midnight - 3:00 a.m. The Creative Unity Collective Show The more we learn, the more we realize how little we know. Therefore in the never-ending pursuit of intellectual elevation, we present our monthly list of Things We Do Not Understand: If everyone knows Saturday Night Live stinks like a rancid rat corpse, why is it not outta here — worse yet, why are these people then allowed to take millions of dollars and make feature films?; Why has no sportswriter worth a Pascual Perez baseball card picked up on the blatant conflict of interest of having Bud Selig—a team owner—presiding over the baseball strike as acting commissioner? Like, "du-u-u-uh?"; How so many progressives can run this same old "Contract On America" gag and still think they're being clever? Is it any wonder we took a bath in '94?; How does Alfonse D'Amato manage to consistently out-asinine himself everytime he steps up to the mic?; How is it so many people who tripped over themselves to vote in George Pataki are now acting like they just found out he's really Joseph Mengele in disguise? Stereo, 3 hrs

Saturday June 3

Late Saturday night/early Sunday morning
5-7:00 a.m. Cosmik Debris To kick off Fresh Fruits and Vegetables Month–Cosmik Debris presents The Farm Report. Tune in for details. With Rocky & Pandora. Words and music from the void

Sunday June 4, 1995

late Sunday night/early Monday morning
1-3:30 a.m.Back of the Book It is now Gay & Lesbian & (your host hopes) Bisexual Pride Month. Your host's 1994 Spring Offensive is definitely under way now and he should be finding a significant other sometime before the snow starts to fall, or at least before it starts to get really heavy. In a religious segment Pope Weaselpenis XVI presents the case for canonization of Arbogast the Crummy, who is alleged to have performed a number of miracles including the levitation of one church's petty cash accounts. Cardinal Toxic opposes sainthood for Arbogast because of his opposition to the dogma of virgin birth on the basis of his having gotten it on with the Blessed Virgin when she appeared to him. "If she'll do it with me, she'll do it with anybody," he claimed. Free Form Live Radio by R. Paul Martin

Monday June 5

6-7:00 a.m. No Secrets a monologue by Peggy Dominique, performed by Annabelle Leland. Performed during this hour as part of WBAI's morning show, Wake Up Call

Late night Monday/early Tuesday morning
1:30-3:30 a.m Lurid Details Edgar Allan Poe was more than a master short story writer and a great poet. He was a complete original. Tonight we celebrate his work. Produced by Debbie Rochon and Peter Schmideg

June is Gay Pride Month

Listen for special programming

One of the proudest moments in WBAI history came in 1963, when Baird Searles hosted the radio show, The New Symposium, possibly the first openly gay radio show anywhere. While we haven't set the June schedule, tune in for our live coverage of some of the events on the right and other special programming. (Dave Burstein, Folio Editor)

The Gay Show

WBAI 99.5 FM Alternate Sundays 7 to 8 PM

Hosts: Bob Storm Bill Miranda Salzman Marle Becker Rick X

WBAI's The Gay Show is the longest running Gay & Lesbian program in the country and perhaps the planet. We have covered a far and wide arena of our communities' events, from the International AIDS Conferences to anti-violence concerns; from flamboyant drag, drug addiction, leather, and lace fantasy, to serious plays and in-depth psychotherapy. We try to inform, educate, and delight our concerned and activist listeners. We are determined to increase our visibility and the quality of the show, so that our position of information and trust continues into the next millennium.

Featuring the Mohawk Valley Corn Project, Green Guerrillas, the greening of Harlem, farm hands, green markets, etc.

Friday June 16

Midnight - 3:00 a.m. The Creative Unity Collective Show The following is a friendly public service announcement from the brother that talks in all caps to indicate loud volume: OH, SO NOW EVERYBODY'S ALL UPSET BECAUSE THEY JUST FOUND OUT ABOUT THE GAME THAT THE "MAN" IS RUNNING ON Y'ALL! Y'ALL JUST DECIDED TO WAKE UP NOW, HUH? NOW EVERYBODY'S RUNNIN' TO BROTHER ALL-CAPS TO FIND OUT WHAT TO DO! WELL, NOW IT'S TOO LATE, SEE! SEE, I ALREADY GOT MY ONE WAY TICKET TO RWANDA, MOTHER-JUMPER! SO I'M GONNA BE AH-IGHT! I'M GONNA BE AH-IGHT...! Stereo, 3 hrs

Saturday June 17

Late Saturday night/early Sunday morning Midnight-5:00 a.m. {Former Prince} and Anthony Sloan Farewell Birthday Special Well folks, This is it!!! Or Is It? It seems like we've come to the end of the Proverbial Paisley Road. For over ten years, we, the Girls and Boyz of The New Boogie Groove, have brought to you the best of {The Artist Formerly Known as Prince.} But now, in the immortal words of Boys II Men, we've come to the End of the Road. Our Godfather, Anthony Sloan, is transcending the Physical Plain of WBAI for the Greener Pastures of the world. But thanks to Air Africa, the Internet, and tape cassettes he'll never be far from the Boyz. That's what The Dawn is all about. To get his party started right, we the Boyz are going to send him off in New Boogie Style with a New Boogie Birthday Bang guaranteed to be the baddest Boogieland Birthday Bash you've ever heard. So join us as we celebrate the genius of {The Artist Formerly Known as Prince.}

Sunday June 18

7-9:30 a.m. Through the Opera Glass A special Verdi Father's Day program, part II. Host: Anthony Coggi. Regina Fiorito-Sokol, executive producer late Sunday night/early Monday morning 1-3:30 a.m. Back of the Book In one more week it will be Gay & Lesbian & Bisexual Pride Weekend. Your bisexual host will undoubtedly go on about how he was in the first Christopher Street Liberation Day march twenty five years ago, and how it's all changed and the conservatives in the movement have taken over, and then there's them whippersnappers. There will be talk about the movement of 25 years ago, friends and enemies gone, bisexuality, the Gay Activists Alliance and whatever the big controversy is about THIS year's march and rally. Hear about a quarter of a century of pissing off others in the movement. Find out what "The Trucks" used to mean and hear tales of what it was like to wear a "Gay power" button for more than 14 years. Free Form Live Radio by R. Paul Martin

4-4:30 p.m. Shelf Life In celebration of Juneteenth (June 19th), the African-American observation of when the slaves in Texas were informed that slavery was abolished, David D. Wright and Chiri Fitzpatrick have produced a radio drama written by Peter DeAnda. They were Doin' a Jig but Mr. Bones Didn't Feel Like Dancing, directed by Peter DeAnda, enters the realm of a Black man believing that he can become President of the United States and then the wake call...

The play continues Tuesday-Thursday at the same time

Late night Monday/early Tuesday morning 1:30-3:30 a.m Lurid Details We explore the work of playwright Harold Pinter, whose plays are as poetic as they are terrifying and as sparse as they are deep. Produced and hosted by Debbie Rochon and Peter Schmideg

Tuesday June 20

2-3:00 p.m. Changing Course: a Survival Toolkit for the 21st Century Let Them Eat Seasonally Everyone has to eat, so let's see what's cooking nearby. Are most people even aware of what "in season" means anymore? Join us with some of New York's best and aware chefs to discuss food politics, what and where to buy healthful fresh, in season food, and how to prepare it

Late Tuesday night/early Wednesday morning 3:30-6:00 a.m. 'Nuff Said a late-night double:header: first up, the Hildebrandt Brothers discuss their work on the new Terry and the Pirates strip as well as past projects such as the Tolkien Calenders, Stars Wars Poster, and their work for Marvel. Next at bat, another amusing digression from Peter David, acclaimed writer of The Hulk, Star Trek novels, Babylon 5 teleplays, and tons of postings on the internet. Ed Menje will present these, and a Dr. Strange radio play as a seventh inning stretch

7-9:30 a.m. Through the Opera Glass Probably the wittiest retelling of opera's oft-told tale, Offenbach's Orpheus in the Underworld, is the featured work. Host: Anthony Coggi. Regina Fiorito-Sokol, executive producer

Monday June 26

Late night Monday/early Tuesday morning 1:30-3:30 a.m Lurid Details an examination of the films of David Cronenberg, almost certainly the greatest director working today in the horror genre. Produced and hosted be Debbie Rochon and Peter Schmideg

Tuesday June 27

2-3:00 p.m. Changing Course: a Survival Toolkit for the 21st Century Taking Chances, Putting Our Lives and Hearts on the Line Join Evelyn Tully Costa and Linda Solomon for a frank discussion with environmentalists on the frontlines of change in communities in the United States and throughout the World

Friday June 30

Midnight - 3:00 a.m. The Creative Unity Collective Show The Creative Unity Collective nastily presents it's Annual Funk Show. Three hours of non-stop, rank, sweaty, musty, no deodorant-havin', Brooklyn-basement-party-in-July funk. Many special guests will be passing through to help smell up the place, so check the airwaves for special announcements, get your tapes ready, invite some friends, mix up a barrel of Hawaiian Punch and ginger ale, wear something light and be prepared to dance your way out of your constrictions. Stereo, 3 hrs

Peter DeAnda , whose radio drama, They Were Doin' a Jig but Mr. Bones Didn't Feel Like Dancin' inspired the construction below
